READY EARLY IN APRIL

A Book of Mellow American Humor

By William Allen White

Author of "The Court of Boyville," "The Real Issue," etc.,

ENTITLED

IN OUR TOWN

¶ Who does not know this author's Court of Boyville and its record, full of wistful whimsicality of a Kansan boyhood? Combining a delicate humor, and a vein of genuine feeling, Mr. White suggests Barrie more than any other living writer, and it may be said of his new book that it does for the daily life of a modern Kansas town just what Barrie has done for a Scotch town in "A Window in Thrums." It is through a window also that Mr. White looks out upon the one street of "our town" to observe the current of life that passes there and to record its daily humors and tragedies. It is his sympathy that is Mr. White's most striking trait as a humorist, and that, linking him with Lamb and with Dickens, mellows and humanizes his humorous portrayal of village characters and oddities, making them real people with a real hold upon the heart.

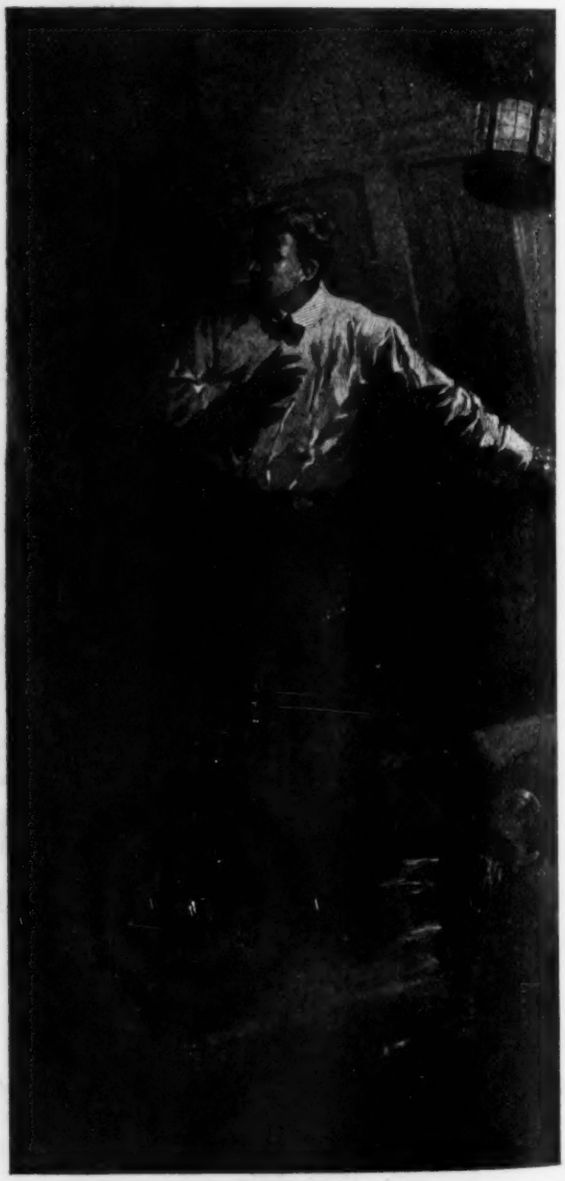
A ROMANCE OF AMERICANS IN RUSSIA

The Edge of Hazard

By George Horton



A riot of brave chances in Japan and Manchuria just before the Russo-Japanese War.

The interest comes in waves of exciting incident that rise higher and higher and sweep the reader on and on.

Fred Hardy, knight of the Twentieth Century, rivets the attention—Fred Hardy and the Princess whom he wooed and saved and won.

A ROMANCE OF RUSSIANS IN AMERICA

The Challenge

By Warren Cheney

Mr. Cheney is the first to write of the Russian in the New World, among the trading posts of Alaska, and he writes of him searchingly, sensitively, and dramatically.

Primitive passions, the thrill of life in the land of the Great White Silence, the working out of the law of recompense make "The Challenge" at once a notable and an intensely interesting novel.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY has added to its Library of Popular Fiction "The Girl and the Deal," by Karl Edwin Harriman.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Edge of Hazard," a new story by George Horton, author of "Like Another Helen." The scene of the story is laid in Japan, Siberia and Russia, and the time is immediately preceding the Russo-Japanese war. The illustrations are by C. M. Relyea.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have brought out this week "Dynamic Factors in Education," by Professor M. V. O'Shea; volume v. of Professor Albert H. Smyth's edition of "The Writings of Benjamin Franklin;" the memoir of the late "Henry Sidgwick," which has been awaited with great interest; "The Breeding Industry: the Value to the Country and Its Needs," by Walter Heape; the second edition of the "Theory of Determinants in the Historical Order of Development," by Dr. Thomas Muir; and the large paper edition, limited to one hundred copies, of "Nero," by Stephen Phillips.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. will publish on the 31st inst. "The Evasion," by Eugenia Brooks Frothingham, author of "The Turn of the Road." The story concerns the exclusive circles of American society with a plot which centres about a young girl whose beauty and atraction are compelling. Its action has to do with the prevailing fads and luxuries which are so dear to the so-called smart set of the country, and so eagerly read by outsiders. "The Evasion," however, is unique in its characterization. The underlying currents of religious and socialistic feeling, and the uncertainty as to which way these currents may turn add greatly to the interest of this novel of real flesh and blood.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day "The New Far East," by Thomas F. Millard, who spent six years in the Orient and is thoroughly conversant with the questions of the day there and the conditions both past and present; "The Philippine Experiences of an American Teacher," by William B. Freer, described by us last week; a new edition of Augustus C. Buell's work on "Paul Jones: Founder of the American Navy," with an added chapter by General Horace Porter describing his search for and discovery of the body, with portraits and illustrations; a new and thoroughly revised edition of Dr. George P. Fisher's authoritative work on "The Reformation;" also, "Bob and the Guides," by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, describing the adventures of a lively and original small boy and some grown up people in the woods.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish on the 29th inst. "Alton of Somasco," by Harold Bindloss, a romance of the wilderness, breakers of the Great Northwest, filled with strong passion, with the struggle of man against nature and of man against man; "Krausz's Practical Automobile Dictionary," in English, French and German, by Sigmund Krausz, containing upwards of 12,000 technical terms and words employed in connection with motor cars and motoring; "Childhood and Growth," by Professor Lafayette B. Mendel, of the Sheffield Scientific School, an essay on the growth and care of children, with an introduction by Horace Fletcher; also, "Humaniculture," by Dr. Hubert Higgins, an account of what is known as "Fletcherism," with new light on the economic nutrition of the body and a discussion of the medical sciences with special reference to this subject that will interest both layman and professional.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☜

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc. is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Alexander, Hartley Burr. Poetry and the individual: an analysis of the imaginative life in relation to the creative spirit in man and nature. N. Y., Putnam, 1906. c. 11+240 p. S. cl., $1.50 net.

Study of æsthetics, dealing with the modes of thought and feeling in which the poetic faculty works. The author's aim is a practical one, in that he simply tries to make modern idealism more vitally effective. The discussion is grouped under the following headings: Impulse and song; Evolution of poetic spirit; The worth of life; The universal and the individual; The imagination; Aesthetic expression; Beauty and personality; Nature and poetic mood.

Alger, Horatio, jr. Joe's luck; or, always wide awake. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1906.] 3-244 p. D. (Medal lib.) pap., 10 c.

Bacheller, Irving Addison. Silas Strong, Emperor of the woods. N. Y., Harper, 1906. [Mr.] c. 5+360 p. map, D. cl., †$1.50.

The author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," etc., here tells the story of "Uncle Sile," the "Emperor" of the Adirondack woods, a "one-word man" whose philosophy was only equalled by his dry humor. He fights the lumber interests and finally loses his life in a heroic attempt to rescue his sister from a forest fire started by his enemies. Two children figure in the tale, and a love story between a rich New Yorker and a wild daughter of the woods is introduced.

Baillie-Saunders, Margaret. Saints in society. N. Y., Putnam, 1906. c. '05. 3+423 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

This novel has won the $500 prize offered by Fisher Unwin, the London publisher, for the best novel from an unpracticed hand. Author is the wife of the chaplain of Marylebone Old Chapel, London. It is a study of social problems in London contrasting the effect of sudden wealth, title and social success in a husband and wife, born of the people. Their different temperaments meet the temptations of worldly success and are tried as by fire.

Banks, C: Eugene. An American woman: a drama in four acts. Chic., Dramatic Publishing Co., (C: H. Sergel, Prest.,) [1906.] c. '05. 51 p. D. (Sergel's acting drama.) pap., 25 c.

Barr, Rob., ["Luke Sharp," pseud.] The triumphs of Eugène Valmont. N. Y., Appleton, 1906. c. '04, '05, '06. 5+330 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

Eugène Valmont was a French detective who had been dismissed from the French government service for political reasons and became a private detective in London. The book is made up of cases he worked on, described in the first person. The descriptions of the differences in French and English detective work add to the interest of the details given.

Baxter, W:, jr. Hydraulic elevators. Chic., Engineer Publishing Co., 1905. c. 3+145+3 p. il. diagrs., 8°, cl., $1.

Bedford, Randolph. The snare of strength. Bost., Herbert B. Turner & Co., 1906. c. 3+365 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

An Australian story full of descriptions of nature, men and animals. Three intimate friends are men of great strength and fierce elemental passions. They work in mines and other Australian interests, but are generally unsuccessful by reason of their own natures. Their vast physical strength tempts them to force impossibilities. The love story chiefly concerns the strongest one of the three men characters, and the end is a runaway match on a fierce horse, ending in tragedy.

Beldam, G: W., and Taylor, J. H. Golf faults illustrated. N. Y., Scribner, [imported,] 1905. 140 p. il. 8°, cl., *$1.25 net.

Bouchard, C: Jacques. Letters on auto-intoxication in disease; or, self-poisoning of the individual; tr., with a preface and new chapters added, by T: Oliver. 2d ed., rev. Phil., F. A. Davis Co., 1906. c. 16+342 p. 8°, cl., *$2 net.

Bousset, W. Jesus; tr. by Janet Penrose Trevelyan; ed. by W. D. Morrison. N. Y., Putnam, 1906. 6+211 p. D. (Crown theological lib.) cl., *$1.25 net.

Author is professor of theology at the University of Göttingen. His work is a judicial consideration of the testimony of the gospels relative to Jesus' life and the forms of his activity, his teachings, and "The mystery of the Person." Under the latter heading he devotes a chapter to "Jesus and the Messiahship" and "The son of man." His conclusions are that Jesus made no claim to being the son of God, and that many of the biblical accounts "belong to the domain of legend."

Brady, Cyrus Townsend, D.D. The patriots: the story of Lee and the last hope; il. in col. by Walter H. Everett. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1906. [F.] c. 15+348 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of our Civil War, that aims to be impartial. The "patriots" are Washington, Grant, Lincoln and Lee. The first two are merely referred to; Lincoln appears but in one chapter, while General Lee is the hero of the story, which presents him in some of the supreme moments of his career. There is a double love story, and there are some vivid descriptions of battles, etc.

Brinley, C: A., ed. Russell Wheeler Davenport, (master of arts,) father of rowing at Yale; maker of guns and armor plate used by the U. S. government: [a biography.] N. Y., Putnam, 1905. c. 79 p. por. 8°, cl., $1.25 net.

The subject of this biographical sketch was not a public man, but his accomplishments in certain directions enabled him to do eminent public service. He was the foremost oarsman of his day, and is known as "the father of rowing" at Yale. As a metallurgist, he rendered conspicuous service. He produced the forgings for the first six-inch, all-steel, built-up gun made in the United States. His skill found concrete expression in the offensive and defensive equipment of the vessels of the United States Navy that fought in the Spanish War; and in the last year of his life he began the reorganization of the shipyard in which many if not most of those vessels were constructed.

Eyre, Archibald. The girl in waiting. Bost., J: W. Luce & Co., 1906. c. 325 p. front. D. cl., $1.50.

An English girl of good breeding and enviable social connections lives with her father in Mayfair. This father falls into bad habits after his wife's death and suddenly decides to marry again and chooses a woman to make him mind. The stepdaughter leaves home and goes to her mother's sister, who keeps a little tea and bun shop in a small English town. Here she becomes "the girl in waiting." She meets some strange characters while dispensing tea and becomes involved in a detective case dealing with the loss of a diamond tiara. The girl is jolly and unconventional and is much criticized for her really wholly innocent pranks.

Hale, Mrs. Louise Closser. A motor car divorce; with drawings by Walter Hale. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1906. [F.] c. 8+319 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Mrs. Hale is well-known in dramatic circles as Louise Closser. Her novel has been running serially in The Bookman for several months. The tour through Europe in an automobile by Mr. and Mrs. John Ward was primarily undertaken to furnish evidence of "incompatibility of temper" and thus obtain a divorce. How the means fail is told with considerable humor. Mrs. Ward has advanced ideas about women, and had accepted George Meredith's theory, that marriage should be a ten year contract, easily broken. She has been married ten years and proclaims in her club her determination to demonstrate "her beliefs." Her husband listens to her arguments, and suggests buying an automobile.

Harry, Myriam. The conquest of Jerusalem: a tale of to-day. Bost., Herbert B. Turner & Co., 1906. 2+301 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Story of wasted possibilities, a ruined life. A young French archæologist comes to Jerusalem, filled with enthusiasm to use his knowledge to unravel the mysteries of antiquity. Sensuous, utterly uncontrolled, he lets himself lose touch with religion and reverts to paganism. Because his sedate Swiss wife does not respond to his passion, he solaces himself with other women, pitying himself always as a misunderstood man. Many scenes are laid in the Syrian desert, and there are glimpses of the strife of the religious sects in Jerusalem.

This volume may be considered a supplement to Prof. Hyslop's "Science and a future life," as it goes more thoroughly into many of the subjects only touched upon there. The various experiences quoted are not for the purpose of scientific proof of a transcendental world, and much less as evidence of what such a world is, if the facts should prove it, but as evidence of something which needs further investigation. The author was formerly Professor of Ethics and Logic in Columbia University.

Indian tribal funds: the case for the Catholic Indians stated with the record made in Congress of debate by the Senate on the issue of the mission schools. N. Y., Marquette League, [1906.] 48 p. O. pap., gratis.

Permission was given several years ago by the authorities at Washington sanctioning the use by the Catholic Indians of their tribal funds for the support of their schools. These funds held by certain Indian tribes are their own, which have been paid to them by the government for lands they have ceded. The Catholic Indian Bureau had all along contended that an Indian parent should be allowed to spend his own money, in his own way, in the education of his own children in the school of his own choice. The whole question has been the subject of much misrepresentation—hence this pamphlet giving all particulars of the subject with the debates in Congress from its inception.

An effort to discover the philosophy of Jesus by an investigation of the four Gospels, regardless of theologies and dogmas, priests or church. Various systems of philosophy from the Greek to that of the modern evolutionist are contrasted or compared with the cult of Christianity. The author, who is a well-known lawyer, writing under a pen name, does not care when the Gospels were written nor by whom. His concern is simply their hidden meaning, the philosophy which Christ taught.

Prof. Mackinnon of St. Andrew's University, Scotland, author of "The growth and decline of the French monarchy," etc., thinks "that liberty is the free development of man, subject of course to the limits of such development inseparable from human life." In these two and succeeding volumes he traces the development of liberty as exemplified in modern history, the work being a history and not a philosophic disquisition, and dealing with man as a member of the State. Succeeding volumes will discuss the constitutional struggle in England and Scotland in the 16th century, the American and French Revolutions, and the revolutionary and progressive movements of the 19th century. By the author of "When the land was young." Romance centering in Byron's love for a beautiful Greek girl, to whom he is suppposed to have written "Maid of Athens, ere we part" and several other poems. His impetuous, daring wooing presents him in a most favorable light, and throughout the story he is more sinned against than sinning. Turkish plots separate him from his Greek love, while the story closes with his heroic death at Missolonghi in defence of Greek liberty. Glimpses are also given of Turkish harem life.

Rector of St. Augustine's (Episcopal) Church, Brooklyn, has written this book to refute the claims of the Seventh Day Adventists. His argument is that the ceremonial of the religious system, established in the Old Testament or Old Covenant, was abolished by and in Christ; hence, that the Sabbath of the Jews is no longer binding upon Christians as the Adventists claim. Sunday, the first day of the week, was the day chosen by the early Christians for worship and as it is necessary that there be uniformity in such observance, Sunday has since then been set aside as a rest day, a day for special religious observance; but the Old Testament restrictions and ceremonials concerning the Sabbath should in no degree be applied to this Christian Sunday.

Tim's place is a clearing in the Maine lumber region, which Tim Connor, an Irishman, had settled. "Chip," a pretty, ignorant girl of sixteen, is the maid of all work in this primitive hotel. One night, there is a quarrel at cards, and she hears her father, who is an escaped murderer in hiding, sell her to a repulsive half-breed. To escape a fate worse than death, she travels sixty miles of almost pathless Maine wilderness, and is saved by a camping party, who feed her and clothe her and take her home with them. Her father pursues her but is killed, leaving "Chip" an heiress; she only knows this, however, much later, when she has assumed her real name of Vera Raymond, and is a beautiful, well educated girl.

He offers an argument and some statistics against trusts and the railroads.

The general notice of this great history appears in "The Annual American Catalog," 1905. This was v. 4 of the work. Now comes v. 2, and the expert who writes it is of Balliol College. The years he covers witnessed the creation of English feudalism, the rejuvenation of the English Church, the decisive conflicts of church and feudalism with the state. They also witnessed the trial and failure of autocracy at home and of a premature imperialism in foreign policy. Separate bibliography, index and maps for each volume.

Professor Pfleiderer of the Berlin University, one of the leading German theologians and philosophers, delivered the contents of this book in a course of public lectures in Berlin during 1905. His viewpoint of the origin of Christianity is purely historical. The book is divided into two parts, the first being devoted to the preparation and foundation of Christianity, showing the influence of Greek philosophy, and the Jewish-Greek school of Philo, the basis of Judaism, the achievement of Jesus, and the earliest group of Christian believers. The second section treats of The evolution of early Christianity into a church, as traced in the teachings of Paul, the three older Gospels, the gnostic movement, the meaning of the Gospel of John, and the establishment of church authority.

A romance of the old gray city of Quebec, by the author of "By the good Sainte Anne," and other novels. The two races that divide Quebec socially and politically, the English and the French Canadian, also divide it in the matter of creeds. It is the marriage of Arline Lord, a Protestant girl highly connected, and Amédée Leleu, a Catholic, honored by all who know him, that is responsible for the story. The difference in religion causes great unhappiness, the marriage ending in almost complete disaster. The characters are very attractive. There are two cultivated Americans, a brother and sister, and two fine young Englishmen, the American girl winning the love of both the Englishmen. The conversations are bright and the scenes from the social life of the city animated and realistic.

Religion (The) of Christ in the twentieth century. N. Y., Putnam, 1906. c. 7+197 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

Author distinguishes between the Christian religion and the Religion of Christ—one a combination of ideas, the idea of ecclesiastical organization, the idea of doctrine, and as an adjunct the idea of the way of life. The religion of Christ, on the other hand, he characterizes as a way of life alone. The progress of the Christian church is traced, and three representative Christian organizations holding conflicting views are examined, viz., the Roman Catholic church, the Unitarian and the Anglican or Episcopal. This latter, the author thinks, is the middle way, the "reconciler of Christendom," though he points out the dangers confronting it. The last chapters analyze and explain the teachings of Christ on religion.

Mr. Richards was born in 1841 in Connecticut; his early life until 1867 was passed in the United States; thirty-eight years from 1867 to 1905 have been spent in England. His narrative is entirely personal, giving in pleasant outlines, sketches of those with whom he has had social or business relations. As he made many voyages each year to the United States, he had opportunities to compare not only methods of life, both social and commercial, but the advances made in every way by both countries. He gives reminiscences of many famous persons —Rev. C: Spurgeon, Dr. Jos. Parker, Beecher, etc., with numerous English and American actors and actresses. Mr. Richards was from 1894 to 1905 proprietor of the London Academy. His eldest child is Pearl Richards (Mrs. R. W. Craigie), the celebrated novelist and dramatist, better known probably under her pseudonym "John Oliver Hobbes."

Dr. Robinson, vicar of Allhallows, Barking by the Tower, London, and author of "The personal life of the clergy," describes the inception and growth of the Mission of Help to South Africa, suggested by Bishop Wilkinson of England and carried through by the bishops and clergy of the English church. In January, 1904, thirty-six missioners sailed for South Africa and during the next nine months held missions in all parts of the country. The preliminary work is described as well as the satisfactory results, and there are additional reports brought together in the appendix.

Dr. Shadwell, author of "Drink: temperance and legislation," states that this work is the result of study of "the growing pressure of international competition in industry, which is evidently going to be the warfare of the future." The work contains nothing about imports and exports, but examines "the conditions under which industries are carried on in the three leading industrial countries apart from tariffs." The industrial centres have been selected in each country which represent the textile and metal industries, are purely industrial and as nearly comparable as possible. Vol. 1 is devoted to selected towns in the three countries, with descriptive and historical notes on the rise of local industries, while vol. 2 deals with the conditions in factories, housing, cost of living, drink, trade unions, pauperism, education, etc.

Lectures delivered at various times by former Bishop of Oxford and Regius professor of history in the University of Oxford. The Constitution under the early English and Norman Kings is described very clearly, and full explanations given of the technical terms which are used in the laws and charters of the Norman kings. The later lectures are upon general subjects connected with early English history. An account and comparison of early European constitutions, and discussions upon the character of the early ecclesiastical systems in Europe, of the origins of the European land system, and of the European law, represent but a few of the interesting and important topics treated of by the learned writer. The volume closes with a lecture upon the Beginnings of English foreign policy.

Juan de Valdés, or, in its Italian form, Valdesso, was one of the most notable of the Spanish reformers of the 16th century. Correspondent of Erasmus, twin brother of the secretary of the Emperor Charles v., for a time chamberlain of the pope, he was only saved from persecution for his heretical opinions because of his influential connections. As it was he was obliged to leave Spain and spent most of his life in Naples, where he gathered together a company of spiritually minded men and women to whom these one hundred and ten "Divine considerations," or meditations on questions of doctrine and conduct are addressed. First published in Basle in 1550 in Italian, it came to the attention of Nicholas Ferrar, who translated it into English and submitted it for approval to George Herbert. This is the first complete edition since Ferrar's Oxford edition in 1638. Frederic Chapman writes an introduction; the original title page and prefatory note of the Basle edition are given, George Herbert's letter and Ferrar's introduction.

"This book is an attempt to place the relations of sex in a new and decisive light. It is an attempt not to collect the greatest possible number of distinguishing characters or to arrange into a system all the results of scientific measuring and experiment, but to refer to a single principle the whole contrast between man and woman. In this respect the book differs from all other works on the same subject. It does not linger over this or that detail, but presses on to its ultimate goal; it does not heap investigation on investigation, but combines the psychical differences between the sexes into a system; it deals not with women, but with woman."—Author's Preface.

Wood, W: The fight for Canada: a sketch from the history of the great imperial war. Definitive ed. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1906. 20+370 p. pors. map, O. cl., $2.50 net.

Major Wood, who is president of the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec, treats the fight for Canada, the most famous episode of the Seven Years' War between France and England, as both a military and naval campaign in which sea power played a most important part in the British conquests. He describes the conditions in the American colonies and New France in the early years of the 18th century, the successes and defeats of the French and Indian wars and the campaign under General Wolfe in Canada culminating in the siege of Quebec, and the Battle of the Plains during which Wolfe and Montcalm were both mortally wounded. He uses authentic material that has been discovered since Parkman's histories. There are some thirty pages of notes, an index, and a 16-page bibliography.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

As an indication of the lack of interest in bibliographic matters in this country the recent sale of the unique collection of book-trade catalogues and other bibliographic reference works that it took Mr. Wilberforce Eames the greater part of a lifetime to bring together, offers a fair example. The whole collection, comprising seventy-five numbers, including every important English trade catalogue, from Maunsell's unique catalogue, 1595, to the issues of the English reference catalogue, 1902, an almost complete series of the Term catalogues and the British Museum catalogue, went for a trifle over one thousand dollars; of this amount $550 was paid for the British Museum catalogue, a small price when the scarcity of the work in this country is considered. We doubt whether another such collection will appear again in an auction room, and it is to be regretted that it could not have been secured intact and deposited in some public library or in some such institution as the Grolier Club.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 24, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE COPYRIGHT CONFERENCE.

THE third series of sessions of the Copyright Conference held, at the Library of Congress, Washington, from Tuesday through Friday of last week, resulted in the settling of most of the important principles in the new copyright code, although it was not practicable, as some one said, to "solve quadratic equations in a town meeting," and deal with the details, and, especially, the phraseology of the bill. This will be done by the Librarian of Congress and the Register of Copyrights with the assistance of experts, especially the representatives of the American Bar Association and of the Bar Association of New York, Arthur Steuart and Paul Fuller, with the purpose of putting into legal form, for submission to Congress, the principles agreed upon by the Conference.

The gathering included representatives from over thirty associations, representing the producing interests—authors, dramatists, musical composers and artists; the reproducing callings—book and music publishers, printers, lithographers, etc., both on the employing and labor sides; and, thirdly, the outside interests—as the American Library Association and the Bar Associations. It was most gratifying that the seventy representatives present came to learn that all the organizations had a common purpose of making the law and the rights of authors specific and definite rather than of denying or limiting rights. There were differences of opinion as to principles and as to details, but on the whole the Conference was most remarkable for the spirit of comity and for the willingness to compromise on questions where there was difference rather than agreement.

The fundamental position reached was that publication itself should be recognized as the dividing point between common law right in an unpublished work and statutory protection of a copyrighted work, i.e., that copyright should date from publication. It was agreed between the representatives of the artists and of certain reproductive interests, however, that on works of art exhibited before publication some simple kind of copyright notice should be shown, that there might be no question as between works in the public domain and works protected or to be protected by copyright. It was also agreed that copyright protection should cover all component copyrighted or copyrightable parts of a work, so that there should be no need of repeating each copyright notice under each illustration or with each contribution, and that no material should be brought incidentally into the public domain because an illustration, for instance, had not been copyrighted previous to the copyrighting of the book of which it might be a part. The term of life and fifty years was favored for original works, and fifty years for reproductive works, with a shorter term of twenty-eight years for labels and prints, which the Patent Office insists on transferring to the Copyright Office. As to importations, an agreement was reached between representatives of publishers and of librarians by which public libraries and like corporate institutions were to be allowed the privilege of importation, without consent of the copyright proprietor, of books from the country of origin, or out-of-print books, or books forming parts of libraries purchased abroad. It was agreed that the copyright formalities should be reduced to the simplest terms, the deposit of copies within thirty days after publication and the inscribing of a simple copyright notice on all copies made for sale or use within the United States—the extra-territorial notice being carefully provided against; and that copyrights should not lapse, as now, for non-compliance with some formality, but that infringment suits could not be initiated or maintained unless the formalities had been complied with. Many other questions of principle or detail were brought before the Conference for discussion and, in most cases, tentative settlement—only Congress can make the final decision—but the most important are those above mentioned.

It was decided that no further conference should be had unless on receipt of the final draft a majority of the associations represented should desire such a meeting. Too much cannot be said of the tact, fairness and effectiveness with which the Librarian of Congress presided over the sessions, or of the service done by the Register of Copyrights in preparing the material for the Conference, and, particularly, the draft on which discussion and action were based. It is hoped that the final draft will be ready early in April, so that the measure may go before the committees of Senate and House within that month for the necessary consideration and hearing.

THE LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS ON THE COPYRIGHT CONFERENCE.

A STATEMENT has been issued by the Librarian of Congress, Herbert Putnam, as to the work of the copyright conference which has been in session in Washington during the past week. It quotes from the President's message on the subject, refers to former meetings and to the work of this conference, but does not present its results in any formulated bill to be presented to Congress. Such a measure is to be prepared and submitted to the various organizations which participated in the conference, and when approved by them will be introduced in Congress.

The reference to the need for a general revision of the copyright laws, in the President's message to Congress, December 5, 1905, was as follows:

"Our copyright laws urgently need revision. They are imperfect in definition, confused and inconsistent in expression; they omit provision for many articles which, under modern reproductive processes, are entitled to protection; they impose hardships upon the copyright proprietor which are not essential to the fair protection of the public; they are difficult for the courts to interpret and impossible for the Copyright Office to administer with satisfaction to the public. Attempts to improve them by amendment have been frequent, no less than twelve acts for the purpose having been passed since the Revised Statutes. To perfect them by further amendment seems impracticable. A complete revision of them is essential. Such a revision, to meet modern conditions, has been found necessary in Germany, Austria, Sweden, and other foreign countries, and bills embodying it are pending in England and the Australian colonies. It has been urged here, and proposals for a commission to undertake it have, from time to time, been pressed upon the Congress. The inconveniences of the present conditions being so great, an attempt to frame appropriate legislation has been made by the Copyright Office, which has called conferences of the various interests especially and practically concerned with the operation of the copyright laws. It has secured from them suggestions as to the changes necessary; it has added from its own experience and investigations, and it has drafted a bill which embodies such of these changes and additions as, after full discussion and expert criticism, appeared to be sound and safe. In form this bill would replace the existing insufficient and inconsistent laws by one general copyright statute. It will be presented to the Congress at the coming session. It deserves prompt consideration."

Speaking of the three conferences, Mr. Herbert Putnam says: "They have been notable in many respects, but particularly in these: In the number of organizations participating. There were thirty-three in all, represented in the aggregate by nearly seventy delegates. In their representative character: They included not merely authors of all sorts, including dramatists, artists, painters, sculptors, architects and composers, but the publishers, including publishers not merely of books, but of periodicals and newspapers and music; and of artistic productions and reproductions, such as lithographs, photographs and others; printers, typographers, lithographers and others. These were represented by officers, but also in many cases by their legal counsel. In addition the conferences had the benefit of general legal counsel in specially appointed committees of the American Bar Association and of the Bar Association of New York.

"It is to be noted also that the conference included not merely the creator of the thing to be protected, and the copyright proprietor in general, but representation of the interests which are concerned with the use of material that may be in the public domain—that is, the reproducers. So that consideration was assured of the welfare of this part of the general public and its right to be safeguarded against trespassing innocently to its own cost.

"The June conference lasted three days, the November four, the March four—and each day included a double session lasting from five to seven hours; a total of eleven full days, or nearly seventy hours. This was merely the conferences themselves. It takes no account of incessant correspondence and discussion in the interim since last June.

"The temper of the conferences: There was not a perfunctory hour or quarter hour. Ordinarily in such affairs, or in committee meetings, delegates are apt to pull out and read newspapers or give other evidences of lack of interest in the matter under discussion. In the entire eleven days I recall but one instance, and that but for ten minutes, in which even a newspaper was in evidence. The consequence was that every subject brought up, although seemingly special and perhaps of peculiar interest to one group, was considered by all.

"The desire to be candid, and the disposition to be fair—this was particularly evident in the disposition to find some reasonable mean in question that necessarily involved extremes of opinion; and a reasonable compromise in questions where interests were diverse.

"The results: The conferences could not themselves frame a bill. This had not been expected of them. The most that had been hoped of them was:

"That they should establish some general principles.

"That they should bring forward into proper recognition particular hardships suffered under the existing law and appropriate measures of relief.

"That by frank expression, in a body so disposed to be conciliatory, they should furnish a practicable working basis between interests naturally diverse, or even adverse.

"Now they have accomplished all these things and accomplished them in a degree quite extraordinary and never predicted. They have established as the judgment of the groups represented certain general principles, for instance:

"That where there is publication, the protection of copyright should initiate from publication. This seems simple as stated, but the establishment of it affects in diverse ways the determination of innumerable provisions and clears away innumerable perplexities. It does not prevent special provisions for dramas and for works of art before publication or of which publication is not intended.

"That the copyright in a work should cover all the copyrightable matter therein. Equally simple as stated, but whose enunciation cleared away many embarrassments.

"That in the simplification of the copyright notice, some notice must be retained sufficiently identifying the object with the record.

"That the omission of mere formalities should not of itself invalidate the copyright, even though it should prevent recourse against innocent infringement. Under the present law, the deposit of copies is not merely a requirement, but an immediate requirement, the omission of which will invalidate the copyright, since the copies must be deposited on or before the date of publication.

"The substitution of penalties for invalidation of copyright, through omissions of formalities not indispensable to the protection of the public.

"A continuous term instead of renewals. The results: Varying terms for different classes of articles, instead of the present uniform term for all. Probably three groups, with three terms corresponding. For certain articles a term shorter than the present. The longest term, however, to insure that no author shall, within his lifetime, be deprived of the benefit of his copyrights, nor shall his immediate family be so deprived.

"The public is much interested in these principles, as it will be in the particular provisions of any bill that may be introduced, but they are not, as a whole, in a condition yet to be promulgated nor were they formulated for promulgation. They were simply for the guidance of those who are to draft the bill. Besides them, the framers of the bill will have for their guidance particular provisions, and even particular phraseology, proposed. And among matters to be dealt with were many concerning the direct administration of the copyright office, and, of course, penalties and legal procedure. Simplification of the latter with immunity from the production in evidence of matter that cannot be produced."

BEST-SELLING BOOKS IN ENGLAND.

THE books most in demand in England during February, according to the London Book Monthly, are:

The Gambler, by Katherine C. Thurston.
The Portreeve, by Eden Phillpotts.
The Smiths, by Kebel Howard.
The Dynasts, by Thomas Hardy.
Memoirs of Bishop Temple.
Porfirio Diaz, by Mrs. Alec Tweedie.
With the Empress Dowager in China, by Katherine Carl.
The Champagne Standard, by Mrs. John Lane.
The Scholar's Daughter, by Beatrice Harraden.
No. 101, by Wymond Carey.

MRS. FREEMAN HAS NOT LAMPOONED METUCHEN.

MUCH excitement has recently been caused by the report that Mrs. Freeman drew the characters in her novel, "The Debtor," from living prototypes in Metuchen, New Jersey, the author's home. Interviews with citizens of the town reveal the fact that Metuchen does not take the matter to heart, because where they know Mrs. Freman they know her to be incapable of such an act. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Freman planned the story of "The Debtor" while she was yet Miss Wilkins, before she came to live in Metuchen; and although in a very general way Metuchen served as the model for the "Banbridge" of the novel, the characters, both principal and subsidiary, were sketched in detail some years ago. Mrs. Freeman denies most emphatically that she has put her friends into her work. "It would be dishonorable," she said. "I would never steal the purse or the personality of one I knew. I should regard either action in the same light." Those who know Mrs. Freeman declare that she would be incapable of making capital out of her friends, and are annoyed that such a silly report should have been circulated.

A VETERAN MAINE BOOKSELLER.

HALL L. DAVIS, on the 8th inst., celebrated the sixty-fourth anniversary of his establishment in the book and stationery business at 49 Exchange Street, Portland, Me. Mr. Davis, who is now seventy-six years old, has been continuously in business at this address, where his uncle, Hall J. Little, with whom Mr. Davis served his apprenticeship, established himself in 1824. Mr. Davis was born in Portland in 1829, and after leaving school entered his uncle's business, becoming a partner when he reached his majority. In 1866 the big fire which swept Portland destroyed Mr. Davis's building, but a year after the present building was completed, and with the exception of a few weeks, and now and then a day, Mr. Davis has been in his store all the year round. Some time ago Mr. Davis was asked to join the Aged Brotherhood of Portland, but he declined, saying he was not old enough and preferred to retain his membership in the Young Men's Christian Association.

HIGH PRICES FOR BOOKS AND MSS.

HAWTHORNE'S "PETER PARLEY'S UNIVERSAL HISTORY."—One of the rarest of first editions of Nathaniel Hawthorne's books was sold to Frank Maier for $90 at Anderson's auction rooms on March 14. It was "Peter Parley's Universal History on the Basis of Geography," square 12mo, original cloth, gilt, Boston, 1837. It is a clean copy, but the subtitle is torn and three of the flyleaves are missing. As this work was published for the use of school children, who, as a rule, handled it roughly, a perfect copy is almost impossible to get. Only two other copies have brought higher prices, the Bishop Hunt copy in 1904, $140, and the Arnold copy in 1901, $100.

Among other remarkable books sold on the same occasion were:

JOHN HAY'S "CASTILIAN DAYS."—A first edition of John Hay's "Castilian Days," 8vo, Boston, 1871, sold for $11. It was a presentation copy from the author to John A. Littlefield, and has an original tinted portrait of Hay and an autograph note.

JAY GOULD'S "HISTORY OF DELAWARE COUNTY."—Jay Gould's "History of Delaware County, N. Y.," 8vo, Roxbury, 1856, sold for $11, and "Le Costume Historique," by M. A. Racinet, for $81.

LORD NELSON'S "GENERAL MEMORANDUM."—The original draft in Lord Nelson's handwriting of the historical "General Memorandum" to his captains at the battle of Trafalgar was sold at auction at Christie's, London, for $18,000. The purchaser was a bookseller who was reported to be acting on behalf of an American collector, but he denied this and said he thought the document ought to remain in England, adding that he was ready to hand it over to the British Museum for $18,000. Otherwise he intended to sell it to the highest bidder. The competition was very brisk. The first offer was $1250, after which the bidding rose $500 or $1000 on each bid. The memorandum was supposed to have been lost, but was recently found in the possession of a private family living near Merton Abbey, the home of Lady Hamilton.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS.

AT a meeting of the Board of Managers of the Booksellers' League, held at the Café Thomas, East Twentieth Street, near Broadway, New York City, on the evening of March 21, the following officers were elected: first vice-president, A. Wessels; second vice-president, J. Barnes Pratt; secretary, Francis Gilman, and treasurer, Edward G. Lawrance.

President W. G. Preston appointed the following committees:

Employment Bureau.—Charles E. Bonnell, manager.

Entertainment Committee.—A. Wessels, E. Byrne Hackett, Myles Standish and F. Gilman.

Finance Committee. — Cass Richardson, Samuel Reis, J. B. Pratt, C. L. Bowman.

Printing Committee.—C. A. Burkhardt, E. G. Lawrance, F. D. Lacy, J. Macdonald.

Membership Committee.—A. Growoll, John A. Holden, J. A. Wirth, T. E. Schulte.

BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION OF DENVER.

THE BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION OF DENVER, Colo., recently met at dinner partly to enjoy themselves socially and partly to talk shop. The Denver Association differs from other local associations in that they demand no dues and have no written agreement, believing in the axiom that the importance of any rule is the spirit in it. They simply get together and agree to maintain prices, taking each other's word for it to do the things agreed upon. In the matter of special sales, each department manager uses his own judgment, avoiding, however, to conflict with anything agreed upon by the association. This arrangement has worked so satisfactorily so far and has inspired each one with so much confidence in the other's loyalty to the association that when a customer reports to any member that he can obtain certain books cheaper in his neighbor's store no concession is made; and it is generally found that such reports are either manufactured out of whole cloth or are made on a misunderstanding. The officers of the association are: president, Mr. Kendrick of the Kendrick Book and Stationery Co.; vice-president, H. Shields of the Denver Dry Goods Co., and secretary, Mr. Sabin of the Daniels & Fisher's Stores Co.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ROBERT OGDEN DOREMUS, the famous scientist, died on March 23, at his home in the Strathmore, New York. He was born in New York City January 11, 1824.

COLONEL JOSEPH KILLEBREW, author of "The Resources of Tennessee" and author of several works on agriculture, died at Nashville, Tenn., on March 17. Colonel Killebrew was born in Montgomery County, Tenn., May 29, 1831. He was at different times editor of the North Carolina University Magazine, The Union and American of Nashville and The Rural Sun.

ADELINE DUTTON TRAIN WHITNEY died March 21, in Boston, where she was born September 15, 1824. For nearly fifty years Mrs. Whitney's stories for young people, especially for girls, carried her name all over this country. She wrote but little in early life, although she contributed occasionally to magazines. But from 1860 onward her pen was exceedingly prolific. Among her many volumes may be mentioned: "Mother Goose for Grown Folks," "Boys at Chequasset," "Faith Gartney's Girlhood," "The Gayworthys," "Leslie Goldthwaite," "Patience Strong's Outings," "Hitherto," "We Girls," "Real Folks," "The Other Girls," "Sights and Insights," "Odd or Even?" "Bonnyborough," "Homespun Yarns," "Ascutney Street," " A Golden Gossip," "Friendly Letters to Girl Friends," "Just How," etc. Her works in verse are: "Pansies," "Daffodils," "Holy Tides," "Bird Talk," "White Memories," "The Open Mystery," "A Reading of the Mosaic Story," "Square Pegs," "The Integrity of Christian Science," etc.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

TRUMBULL WHITE, editor of the Red Book, of Chicago, is to become editor of Appleton's Book Lovers' Magazine. James Barnes, who has had temporary charge of the magazine, will return to his regular work in the editorial department of Appleton & Co.

BLISS PERRY, editor of The Atlantic Monthly, has been appointed Professor of English Literature at Harvard. He will occupy a chair held by George Ticknor, Longfellow, and Lowell, and vacant since the retirement of Mr. Lowell in 1866. Mr. Perry will continue the editorship of The Atlantic Monthly, which he has held since 1899.

THE REV. JOHN WATSON, ("Ian Maclaren,") author of "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," has been engaged as Lecturer Extraordinary for the Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny, Pa., and will deliver a course of lectures there. He will also act as stated supply for the First Presbyterian Church of Uniontown, one of the wealthiest churches in that part of the State.

A. B. WARD, the author "The Sage Brush Parson," just brought out by Little, Brown & Co., is Mrs. Alice Ward Bailey, of Amherst, Mass. Mrs. Bailey now confesses that she has never been in Nevada, where the scene of the story is laid, but gathered her impressions of the life and environment of a mining camp from a former resident of Eureka, in that State. This is not Mrs. Bailey's first adventure in literature, as her first story, "Mark Heffron," was published ten years ago, and she has also written several volumes of verse.

FRANCIS MILTOUN and his artistic collaborator, Miss Blanche McManus, are at present engaged on an elaborate illustrated work, dealing with the Mediterranean countries, Provence and the Riviera, after the manner of their successful "Rambles in Normandy" and "Rambles in Brittany," to be published by L. C. Page & Company. There is such a quantity of interesting and fascinating material which has not been incorporated in the books of travel of past generations that these travel books of Mr. Miltoun have filled a decided and definite want.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Charles E. Lauriat Co. have removed to the new Washington Building, directly opposite the head of Franklin Street, after having been in their present location for nearly thirty-five years, orginally as Estes & Lauriat and in later years as the Charles E. Lauriat Co.

CALDWELL, IDAHO.—C. E. Brown has succeeded A. R. Balderson, bookseller.

MILLERSBURG, O.—Julius Kuhn, bookseller, has sold out.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.—J. H. Horton has sold his bookstore to Dr. John Walch and his son George J. H. Walch. The latter, who has been employed by Mr. Walch for about a year, will manage the business.

NEW YORK CITY.—William Beverly Harison, school book publisher, formerly of 65 East Fifty-ninth Street, has been granted a discharge from bankruptcy by Judge Holt. A creditor's petition in bankruptcy was filed against him on March 23, 1904.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—At a meeting of the creditors of Charles P. Penfield, bookseller, Walter P. Butler was appointed trustee, his bond being fixed at $10,000. Frank H. Grauley, Alvin Freeman and Frank M. Jenkins were appointed appraisers.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE contract for supplying books to the public school libraries of Oregon has been awarded by the Library Commission to the J. K. Gill Co., Portland, Oregon.

R. B. MARSTON, editor of The Fishing Gazette, St. Dunstan's House, Fetter Lane, London, will be glad to hear from any one possessing perfect or imperfect copies of the 1653 edition of Walton's "Angler."

THE LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO. have just sent to press for George Cary Eggleston a novel of New York life, entitled "Blind Alleys," which Mr. Eggleston regards as in many respects his most important work in fiction.

THE MORRISON I. SWIFT PRESS, New York City, have just published a new book by Morrison I. Swift, entitled "Marriage and Race Death," which is to be the first of a series of volumes on race problems. It is a study of the effects on the race of the existing location and distribution of wealth.

THE SHAKESPEARE PRESS, Westfield, N. J., have just ready "Love's Labors Lost," a comedy by William Shakespeare," with an introduction by Isaac Platt, containing the 1598 quarto text parallel with the First Folios text of 1623. This forms volume 21 of The Bankside Shakespeare, edited by Appleton Morgan.

THE CONSOLIDATED RETAIL BOOKSELLERS, New York City, have just brought out "The Other Mr. Barclay," by Henry Irving Dodge, a stirring Wall Street story, with a humorous narrative, of the corruption of a small town through "selling short" methods, much like "The Man Who Corrupted Hadleyburg," by Mark Twain. The book is illustrated by Nella Fontaine Binckley.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS has just brought out a "Russian Reader," translated and adapted by Samuel N. Harper from the French work compiled by Professors Paul Boyer and N. Speranski. Mr. Harper is the son of the late President William R. Harper, who has spent some time in Russia and is now instructor in Russian language and literature in the University of Chicago.

THE JOHN MURPHY COMPANY, Baltimore, Md., has brought out for the Easter season and first communion a line of white books comprising "Key of Heaven" and "Child's Book." These may be had in leather and celluloid covers, either plain or with painted designs. They have also made especially for weddings an India paper edition of the Prayer Book, with marriage service and certificate.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY, Akron, O., will publish within a month a new book for children by Dr. James Ball Naylor, entitled "Witch Crow and Barney Bylow." The story deals with the experiences of a farmer lad who yearns for city life, whose wish is granted by the "Witch Crow," who however perversely bestows upon him a magic penny, which, while it never grows less, also never increases.

THROUGH a misunderstanding of the announcement by A. C. McClurg & Co. the impression gained currency that their new edition of "Romola" is to be in Italian. This is an error; the edition is to be in English, and Dr. Biagi's principal part is the contribution of a most interesting collection of illustrations which present the historical background of the story in a manner never heretofore attempted.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. announce the publication for the Department of Economics of Harvard University of a series of monographs to be known as the Harvard Economic Studies. The first to be issued will be the David A. Wells prize essay of the current year, by W. H. Price, A.M., '02, entitled "English Patents of Monopoly, 1560-1640." This will be followed by a study of "The Lodging House Problem in Boston," by A. B. Wolfe, '02.

RAND, MCNALLY & Co. have just brought out a new story of the South entitled "My Quaker Maid," by Marah Ellis Ryan," author of "Told in the Hills," etc. They also announce new editions of this author's other books—"A Flower of France," "In Love's Domain," "Merze," "Miss Moccasins," "A Pagan of the Alleghanies," "Squaw Elouise," "That Girl Montana," "Told in the Hills" and "Montana"—bound in cloth at fifty cents and in paper at twenty-five cents.

"THE CONFESSIONS OF A PRINCESS," the autobiography of the ex-Crown Princess of Saxony, has been suppressed in Germany but is now in press in England. It was originally published in Vienna in November last, and within one month 40,000 copies were sold. The confessions are written in the form of an autobiography, and pseudonyms are substituted for real names, but to an ordinarily well informed person the true identity of the characters is easily established.

THE OLIVER DITSON COMPANY have in preparation in their excellent Musician's Library "Shakespeare Songs," compiled and edited by Charles Vincent, who also furnishes an introduction, and "Early Italian Piano Music," compiled and edited by M. Esposito, with reproductions of photographs of obsolete musical instruments, etc. They also announce a new volume in their Music Students' Library on "The Training of Boys' Voices," by Claude Ellsworth Johnson.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY will publish this spring "The Vicar of Bullhampton," in uniform binding and size with the previous volumes of their edition of Trollope's works. "The Vicar of Bullhampton" was written in 1868, and was probably the most discussed, at the time of publication, of any of Trollope's novels. As the years pass along, Trollope is read more and more. They announce that "Barbara Winslow, Rebel," by Elizabeth Ellis, which is on several lists of the best sellers, is now in in its sixth edition.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have nearly ready Eleanor Talbot Kinkead's novel, "The Invisible Bond," with a frontispiece, in colors, by C. Allan Gilbert; "In Vanity Fair, a tale of Frocks and Femininity," by Eleanor Hoyt Brainerd, which is not a mere dissertation on fashion, though the origin of fashions is its theme, but more importantly a pen picture of the atmosphere and environment out of which the fashions grow; also, a new picture by W. L. Taylor, a wholly new interpretation of "The Nativity," reproduced in colors and in carbon.

JAMES POTT & Co. announce a new story by Douglas Sladen entitled "A Sicilian Marriage," a love story of unusual interest, the scene of which is laid in Sicily, where the author is on familiar ground; "Undistinguished Americans," the life story of people of various races who came to this country for different reasons and are now becoming good Americans; "The Foundations of the Republic," an inspiring message to young and old Americans, by Edward Everett Hale; also, a reprint of G. K. Chesterton's popular monograph on Robert Louis Stevenson.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have in preparation a work on "The Battles of Labor," by Carroll D. Wright, U. S. Commissioner of Labor, which deals very fully with the so-called labor problem; "The Rambles of an Idler," a charming volume for nature lovers, by Dr. Charles C. Abbott; a life of Frederick Douglass, by Booker T. Washington, a new volume in the series of American Crisis Biographies; also, a fifth edition of William Jasper Nicoll's "Coal Catechism," a complete manual on the subject of coal, its formation, production, cost, uses, varieties, future supply, etc.

THE REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY, Chicago, will publish in the fall "John Dough and the Cherub," to which L. Frank Baum put the finishing touches before sailing for Europe. The new "Baum book," while as full of quaint humor, novel fancies and surprising character creations as the books which have made Mr. Baum so popular a writer for children, is in other respects quite different from anything he has previously done. The illustrations, which will be in colors, are being made by John R. Neill, of Philadelphia, whose pictures for "The Land of Oz" so delightfully supplemented the text.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation a work entitled "Camp Kits and Camp Life," by Charles Stedman Hanks, ("Niblick,") a practical handbook for the woods, entertaining as general reading and containing exact directions and suggestions for camping, shooting, cooking, etc., illustrated in a manner to be helpful to the tyro. They will have ready early in April "The Ordeal of Richard Feverel," "Diana of the Crossways," "Sandra Belloni" and "Vittoria," the first four volumes of a new pocket edition of the works of George Meredith, in sixteen volumes, uniform in make-up with the successful Biographical edition of Stevenson.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish some time late in the spring Margaret Deland's new novel, "The Awakening of Helena Richie," now appearing serially in Harper's Magazine. Mrs. Deland has done nothing finer than her portrayal of Helena Richie, the beautiful, ease-loving woman who comes to a realization of her soul through her love for the little boy David. For some years before she began the new story Mrs. Deland had done no writing at all, and her style shows the vigor and freshness that sometimes come to an author after a complete rest from literary activity. They also announce a volume of poems by Louise Morgan Sill, entitled "In Sun and Shade."

ROBERT GRIER COOKE, INC., announce a little volume entitled "Travel in Europe," by Harriet Bernhard Clapp, which will prove useful not only to tourists, but to members of travel classes and to students generally, since it epitomizes for the sightseer in logical sequence the prime places and objects of importance throughout Europe, thus forming an invaluable accessory guide to any volume of travel. Moreover, the author has introduced suggestions for reading in connection with the various places and objects mentioned, unique in their selection, inasmuch as they are chosen from the literature that will invest the student with the spirit of the place rather than with mere descriptive facts thereof.

JOHN W. LUCE & CO. have just brought out "Whistler, Butterfly, Wasp, Wit, Master of the Arts, Enigma," by Haldane McFall," and Robert Louis Stevenson, by Eve Blantyre Simpson, the first two volumes of Spirit of the Age Series. They will publish on April 10 a careful review of the art of Sir Henry Irving, by Haldane McFall, with sixteen illustrations by Gordon Craig, to whose mother, Ellen Terry, the book is dedicated. Later they will bring out "Foolish Etiquette," by O. B. Hayne, humorous hints on correct and incorrect manners under all sorts of circumstances, with illustrations by Wallace Goldsmith; also, "Miss Dean's Double Log: a Yachting Fantasy," by "The Commodore," a book of humor and sentiment profusely illustrated.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish in a few weeks a work on "Practical Rifle Shooting," by Walter Winans. There are many excellent works to be had on the subject of rifle shooting at targets, but there has been next to nothing published on practical rifle shooting—that capacity, that is, to handle a rifle so that the user can confidently expect to stop a wild animal even if in rapid motion and charging, or a charging man. Mr. Winans's book is designed to furnish the beginner with a series of hints, by the use of which he may be enabled not only to put himself through a course of continuous and graduated training, but may also keep himself free of the tricks which impede progress, and which, if persisted in, will destroy his ability for any but the most artificial forms of shooting.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have at last ready the long-delayed story of "The True Andrew Jackson," by Cyrus Townsend Brady, very fully illustrated. They have also just brought out a work on "Wireless Telegraphy," by Gustav Eichhorn, a simple and comprehensive treatment of the fundamental principles and working methods of modern telegraphy by means of electric waves; and a second revised edition of "Economic Entomology," by John B. Smith. They have in preparation a book on "Consumption, Its Relation to Man and His Civilization," by Dr. John Bessner Huber; also, two new novels—"Breakers Ahead," an American story of adventure, by A. M. Barbour, author of "That Mainwaring Affair;" and "The Colonel of the Red Huzzars," the first novel of a new author, John Reed Scott. The following books by well-known authors have just been added to Lippincott's Series of Select Novels: "Life's Trivial Round," by Rosa Nouchette Carey; "When Blades Are Out and Love's Afield," by Cyrus Townsend Brady; and "Marty," by John Strange Winter.

IT appears that the First Folio Shakespeare, which once belonged to the Bodleian Library at Oxford and was sold as "superfluous" by the authorities in 1664, may possibly come to this country. Its present owner, a country gentleman and Oxford graduate, who inherited the book from his great-great-grandfather, would like to see it return to the Bodleian, and has not, therefore, closed with an American offer of $15,000. He gives the university until March 31 the opportunity to purchase the book, and the librarian of the Bodleian is trying to raise the necessary fund. Another First Folio, by the way, has turned up again in Scotland, making the second copy extant there which has escaped Sidney Lee's census. The book, it appears, has been for at least twenty-eight years in Glasgow, in the library of the late A. B. Stewart. It has the verses, the letterpress portion of the title, and the last two leaves in facsimile; but it is said to have satisfied a previous owner, Mr. Crawfurd (he had bought it from Pickering), who was fastidious. This brings the number of First Folios in Scotland up to four, two of them in Glasgow.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. have in preparation a work on "The Art of Garden Design in Italy," by H. Inigo Triggs, illustrating the planning and arranging, the architectural features of the old Italian gardens of the best periods, with an historical essay and descriptive and critical accounts of the principal gardens in Italy, illustrated with 128 plates, of which 73 are reproduced in collotype from photographs specially taken by Mrs. Aubrey Le Blond; "Industrial Efficiency," a comparative study of industrial life in England, Germany and America, by Dr. Arthur Shadwell; "Psalms for the Christian Festivals," by Elizabeth Wordsworth, principal of Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford; "Lectures on Early English History," by Dr. William Stubbs, edited by Arthur Hassall; the first two volumes of "A History of Modern Liberty," by James Mackinnon, treating of the Middle Ages and the age of the Reformation; "The Scientific Principles of Wireless Telegraphy," by Professor J. A. Fleming; "The History of English Rationalism in the Nineteenth Century," by Alfred W. Benn; also, the fourth volume of the "History of Intellectual Development," on the lines of modern evolution, by Dr. John

Beattie Crozier, treating of "A Reconstruction of the Science and Art of Political Economy."

McClure, Phillips & Co. have in preparation "Lady Betty Across the Water," an Anglo-American story by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, author of "The Lightning Conductor," etc.; "In Our Town," sketches, from the editorial sanctum, of a small Western community, by William Allen White; "Pets and Other Critters," humorous animal tales, by Henry Wallace Phillips, author of "Red Saunders;" "The Four Million," stories of New York, humorous and otherwise, by O. Henry, author of "Cabbages and Kings;" "Pigs is Pigs," a farcical novelette, by Ellis Parker Butler, in which a pair of guinea pigs make trouble for a suburban Irishman and a slow-moving railway corporation; "More Stories of Married Life," by Mary Stewart Cutting, in which the author continues the delicious comedies and gentle tragedies of commuter life, so well described in her previous volumes; "Wayside Talks," a new volume by Charles Wagner, of whose "Simple Life," nearly 350,000 copies have been sold exclusive of the pirated editions; "Plays and Lyrics," by Cale Young Rice, the young Louisville poet, who will be remembered by his two dramatic poems, "David" and "Charles di Tosca;" "The Far Country," a book of poems by Florence Wilkinson, author of "Two Plays of Israel," etc.; "Enemies of the Republic," investigations in state government corruption, by Lincoln Steffens; also, a new edition of "The Complete Motorist," by A. E. Filson Young, who has brought his work up to date.

Doubleday, Page & Co. will bring out at once G. B. Lancaster's new story, "The Spur." Considerable interest attaches to this book because it is the first long story by the author of the group of virile New Zealand tales entitled "Sons of Men," which caused many discriminating critics to hail Lancaster as a "new Kipling." These were stories of the New Zealand sheep herders, and developed new ground in fiction. "The Spur" has the same background. The hero is a young New Zealand sheep shearer who is a literary genius. He sells his future to a man for the opportunity to prove himself. The scene shifts for a time to Samoa, where Severne, the hero, is war correspondent and where his love story begins and ends. The man to whom the hero sells himself proves a villain. It is said to be a story of unusual dramatic power, and to fulfill the promise of "Sons of Men." The mystery which still surrounds the identity of "G. B. Lancaster" lends another interest to "The Spur." It was at first believed that the author was a woman, and this fact was widely circulated. But recently Doubleday, Page & Co. received a letter from Andrew Melrose, the English publisher of Lancaster's books, who said: "The fact is, I do not know G. B. Lancaster myself, and I am no more persuaded that she is a woman than you are. I may tell you that my representative in Australasia, who covers Australia and New Zealand three times a year, has failed to meet anybody who knows her. 'Lancaster' has steadily declined to give photographs or personal information."

Henry Holt & Co. will publish next week Dr. and Mrs. George Wells Fitz's book, "Problems in Babyhood," an entertaining and instructive book on the care of the baby from the standpoint of constructive control of the development of the body and character during the period of most rapid growth, with some twenty decidedly attractive pictures of child types by Edward A. Bell; a "Practice Book in English Composition," by Alfred M. Hitchcock, who has devoted fifteen years to teaching the boys and girls of the Hartford (Conn.) Public High School how to write; also, Blochmann's "Luft, Wasser, Licht und Wärme," abridged and edited by Dr. F. W. Meisnest, of the University of Wisconsin. They will publish shortly a book for young people entitled "A Summer in the Apple Tree Inn," by Mrs. Ella S. P. Lipsett. The principal character of the book is the ingenious Japanese servant of some New England children, who brings into their more or less matter-of-fact life delicious bits from Japanese legends and strange glimpses of the wee fairy folk of the cherry blossom land. The four little Americans whom he amuses are hearty and vigorous children. Another feature of the book will be a charming out-door play suitable for performance by youngsters. They have just signed a contract with the popular writer for girls, Miss Marion Ames Taggart, for a new story which they and the author had some trouble in finding a title for, finally settling upon "Four Girls and More Girls." Miss Taggart may be remembered as the author of "Nut-Brown Joan," "Miss Lochinvar" and other books.

The Macmillan Company have just brought out "The Title-Mart," Winston Churchill's play, which has already scored a considerable success on the stage. They announce "Black's Medical Directory," which to some extent will answer the oft-recurring question, "What's wrong," and which aims at giving a general view of medical science and treatment to the average reader; a color book of Wessex, that portion of southern and southwestern England which Thomas Hardy has described to the enchantment of thousands, with reproductions of seventy-five water colors by Walter Tyndale and descriptive text by Clive Holland; "Days with Walt Whitman," by Edward Carpenter, author of "Towards Democracy," who visited America in 1877 and again in 1884, and spent much time with Whitman; an "Anthology of French Poetry, from the time of Froissart up to the Beginning of the Present Century," compiled by Frederick Lawton, which claims to be fairly representative of French poetic literature, especially of its lyrical element, from the age of Villon down to the beginning of our own century; also, "The Life of Animals," by Ernest Ingersoll, in which the author of "Wild Neighbors," etc., portrays the life of the four-footed, furry creatures, their ancestry, their place in nature, their means of making a living, and their characteristics and accomplishments. Unavoidable delay has occurred in the publication of the Collected Library edition, in two volumes, of the poems and plays of W. B. Yeats; but it is now hoped that the edition can be made ready for issue in May.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

The Arncliffe Puzzle

The advance sales were good, but the best proof of their worth is the fact that most everyone has successfully disposed of their stock and re-ordered. The advertising, of course, has helped a lot—and there is more to come.

Let me suggest your keeping both these books to the front; Clode books live quite a time.
